Dear Mr. and Mrs. Ramseur:

Your property, Woodside, is one of only thirteen in Lincoln County listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The demonstrated interest you have shown in historic preservation and the importance of your property in the history of Lincoln County prompts this letter.

The Lincoln County Historic Properties Commission is now ready to begin a program of recognizing sites which are important historically, culturally and architecturally, by recommending them to the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners for local designation as historic landmarks.

We ask that you permit us to apply for this local designation on your behalf. This recognition will generate interest by people who own properties eligible for local designation, and encourage them to begin the process of filing an application. We hope to publicize each property so designated, fostering an appreciation of our rich heritage.

Please review the application you filed for the National Register and note any changes that have occurred. We wish to use the same information found in your property's National Register Application. A copy is enclosed for your convenience. Also enclosed is information on the tax deferral option and review procedures of the Commission. If you have any questions, please contact Steve Killian, Lincoln County Planner, at 732-9000 or call me at 735-7106.

Very truly yours,

HISTORIC DESIGNATIONS

THE LOCAL DESIGNATION OF HISTORIC PROPERTIES PROGRAM AS AUTHORIZED BY THE HISTORIC PROPERTIES ORDINANCE ADOPTED JANUARY 17, 1983

This applies only to individual historic properties studied by the Lincoln County Historic Properties Commission and designated as "historic" by an ordinance passed by the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners.

Its meaning:

1. Honor. It is also an honor meaning the community believes the property is important enough to try to preserve.
2. Financial Incentive. The owner is entitled to apply for a 50% property tax deferral. This is to encourage reinvestment in maintenance of the property. The owner loses the deferral and may be required to pay up to three years of back taxes plus interest if he does anything to cause the property to lose its historic value to the community.
3. Preservation before Demolition. A property designated as a "local historic property" may not be materially altered, restored, moved or demolished unless the owner has been issued a Certificate of Appropriateness by the Historic Properties Commission. A Certificate to Demolish the building may not be denied but its effective date may be delayed for a period of up to 180 days from the date of approval. This delay gives the Commission time to negotiate with the owner and seek a practical alternative to its destruction. If no solution is found within 180 days, the owner may proceed with demolition although he may become liable for back taxes.

HISTORIC DESIGNATIONS

THE NATIONAL REGISTER OF HISTORIC PLACES

The National Register of Historic Places can apply to individual properties or entire districts or neighborhoods.

Its meaning:

1. Honor. The site or district is officially recognized as having architectural, historical or cultural value and being worthy of preservation. This designation comes about only after intensive study and review in Raleigh and Washington, DC.
2. Protection. The site or district has a degree of protection from state and federally funded or licensed projects (highways, urban renewal, etc.) that might destroy or compromise the property. This does not affect private owners using private money with the possible exception mentioned in number three below.
3. Financial Incentives.
 - A. Possible income tax incentives. This applies only to income producing (rental or commercial) property, not private residential property. The amount of tax savings, if any, will depend on the nature and cost of rehabilitation, the owner's tax bracket and other factors. There are income tax disincentives to discourage demolition. (These tax incentives and disincentives may also apply to a local historic district designation even if the area is not listed in the National Register provided the local ordinance establishing the district is certified by the Secretary of the Interior.
 - B. Possible (not guaranteed) Grant Assistance. Limited federal money is available for preservation grants, but these are highly competitive. National Register listing does not guarantee a grant.

Dear Ms. Thomas:

Accept this letter on behalf of the Lincoln County Historic Properties Commission as a request for a review of the "designation reports" for properties that will be designated as historic by the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners. Upon receipt of your comments, the Board of Commissioners will schedule a public hearing. Your assistance is appreciated.

The five properties are the first to respond to the Historic Properties Commission's appeal to the County's National Register Properties for permission to designate. Two properties are publicly owned, the other three properties are privately owned. The respective owners were asked to mention if changes had been made to the properties since its National designation. No one reported any changes.

For your review I have included copies of the report and current ownership information. If I may provide additional information, please do not hesitate to ask.

Very truly yours,

Re: Proposed designation of Woodside, Magnolia Grove, Shadow Lawn, Pleasant Retreat Academy, and the Lincoln County Courthouse as historic properties

Dear Steve:

Thank you for your letter of April 17 and the documentation for designation of the five above-cited properties as local historic properties. We have reviewed the information pursuant to GS 160A-400.6 and would like to offer the following comments.

The historical and architectural significance of all five properties has been well documented and recognized through their listing in the National Register of Historic Places. Therefore, all of them are also excellent candidates for local designation and we support the commission's recommendation that they be so designated. I would, however, like to offer specific suggestions for each property in terms of appropriate elements to include in the designation.

As you know, historic properties commissions may designate the interiors of privately owned properties for which the owner has given written consent for designation and review, and of public properties (with no special conditions for written consent required). I am assuming that you intend to include the interiors of these buildings in a designation along with the exteriors and the lands associated with the structures, as noted in the nominations. If this assumption is correct, I remind you that you must have the owners' written consent for interior review and the designation ordinance must specify what interior elements are included and what the nature of the commission's jurisdiction over those designated interiors will be. In addition, in order for the designation of interiors to be binding on future owners, the current owner's consent must be filed with the Register of Deeds office along with the designation.

Mr. Steve Killian

ordinance, once it is adopted. The enabling legislation spells all this out quite specifically and I encourage you to review the filing requirements to which you will be subject.

In considering the designation of interiors, I suggest the following be included (in addition to any other elements you feel warrant designation which I may not mention):

Magnolia Grove: This property does retain much of its original interior fabric, including Federal style mantels in the 3 original rooms, wainscoting, 6-panel doors, the unusual front and rear doors (with raised panels on the exterior and diagonal sheathing on the interior side), and the stairs with their marbleized risers. In addition, another important feature is the three-room Quaker plan. I would recommend that the designation specify at least these elements for inclusion in the designation and things over which the Commission would have review authority. The designation ordinance, then, would specify that the exterior of the house, the interiors cited above, and the 3 acres upon which the house sits be designated.

Shadow Lawn: This property has lost some of its original interiors, but retains elements which are worthy for consideration for designation. I would specifically include the original center hall plan, the stair, the dining room mantel, and remaining original fabric on the second floor, which I understand from Marvin Brown's book is largely intact. The ordinance should specify these features, the exterior of the house, and the 1/4 acre lot.

Woodside: Again, this is a property which retains a significant degree of its original interiors. The Quaker plan is intact, except that the stair has been moved, and various Federal trim, including wainscoting, mantels, and ceiling medallions) also survives. The four-bay front elevation, with matched central doors, is unique and interesting, and is protected through designation of the exterior. These features, the 1/2 acre lot, and the exterior of the house should be designated.

Pleasant Retreat Academy: Of the five properties proposed for designation this one retains the least amount of original interiors. As far as I can tell, only two Federal mantels remaining inside may warrant designation, but you are in a better position than I to determine if there is other original fabric as well. Of course, the exterior does exhibit interesting features, including the corbelled cornice, and the front door arrangement with fanlights, pilasters, and cornice. Include the mantels, the exterior, and the 2 acres in the designation.

Lincoln County Courthouse: What seems primarily important about the interior of this building is the cross hall plan with octagonal public area on the first floor, and the various marble baseboards, floors, 10-panel doors, classical light fixtures, and pilasters. I understand the courtroom has been completely altered and now retains no original features. It is appropriate to recommend these interior features, the exterior, and the 1.9 acre square upon which this building stands and which is a significant landscape feature of its overall character.

This discussion of interiors may seem excessively detailed, and I want to assure you that not every building you may wish to designate will warrant this level of consideration of interiors. Of course, you may already have decided not to deal with interiors at all, given the sometimes difficult nature of "monitoring" changes inside buildings and owners' reluctance to have someone reviewing what they do inside their home. I do think these properties, particularly the three Federal houses, are worth the effort it may take to protect their interiors. However, you should decide what the best course for your commission will be.

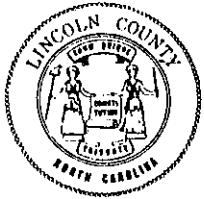

I thoroughly enjoyed reviewing these proposals, for this was a wonderful collection of properties you have proposed for your initial designations. I sincerely hope the county commissioners will look favorably upon these proposals. Please call me if you have any questions about our comments.

Sincerely,

Beth Thomas

PLANNING DEPARTMENT
(704) 732-9000

MEMORANDUM

To: Al Sharp, County Manager
From: Steve Killian, County Planner SK
Date: July 22, 1991
Subject: Historic Designations

In accordance with the Historic Properties Ordinance, the Lincoln County Historic Properties Commission recommends the designation of Magnolia Grove and Woodside as historic landmarks. The historic landmark designation must be done in ordinance form. It is recommended that the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners and the Lincoln County Historic Properties Commission hold a joint public hearing on August 26, 1991. Following the public hearing the Board may consider the ordinances.

The Historic Properties Commission initiated the process to designate the properties which are both on the National Register of Historic Properties. It has reviewed the respective historic landmark designation reports which are identical to their National Register Application Reports. The North Carolina State Historic Preservation Office in accordance with the Lincoln County Historic Properties Ordinance was given the opportunity to comment on the designation reports. They have recommended accepting the reports without modifications. The Historic Properties Commission notified the respective historic property owners as well as adjoining property owners concerning possible designation and invited owners to attend and make comments at its June 20, 1991 meeting. The historic property owners and adjoining property owners were supportive.

If the properties are designated as landmarks then the following would apply:

1. Property owners are eligible to apply annually for partial property tax deferrals. The amount of tax deferral will be set by the Lincoln County Tax Department in accordance with applicable North Carolina Tax Laws.

2. A copy of the Ordinance of Designation is recorded in the Register of Deeds Office and given to the Building Inspections Department and Tax Supervisor.
3. Demolition of landmarks may be delayed (by Historic Properties Commission action) for a period of up to 180 days.
4. Changes to the historic landmark's historically or architecturally significant features may occur after a Certificate of Appropriateness is issued by the Historic Properties Commission. The property owners may at any time alter such significant features but would be subject to repayment of property taxes deferred in the last three years.
5. Historic property owners may continue to qualify for the partial property tax deferral as long as the property is maintained in good condition in accordance with the designation report.

On behalf of the Historic Properties Commission, staff recommends scheduling a joint public hearing for August 26, 1991. Drafts of an historic landmark designation ordinance, letters from property owners approving designation of the building interior, and National Register Applications/Designation Reports for Magnolia Grove (Attachment A) and Woodside (Attachment B) are included for your review.

AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE
Woodside, a large Federal plantation house located on the outskirts of Lincolnton in a well-planted tract, is a two-story brick structure with a gable roof. It is four bays wide and three bays deep, and is set on a random granite foundation. The brick walls are laid in Flemish bond as are the side gable-shouldered exterior and chimneys--one on the east side and two on the west. Two identical entrances occupy the central bays of the main (north) facade, each with a flush-paneled door surmounted by a four-light transom and enframed by a molded architrave. With one exception, the remaining bays of this facade are marked by windows with wide molded architraves, stone sills and flat arches. All are flanked by louvered shutters. Most windows retain original nine-over-nine sash of the first story and the nine-over-six sash of the second except for a large multi-pane replacement window that occupies the first-story east bay. The overhanging eaves are boxed on both the front and rear. The side windows correspond to the original windows of the main facade, and two six-pane glass windows are present in each gable. The windows which flank the east chimney have been replaced by arched doors. Each chimney has single shoulders and a molded cap. The rear elevation is similar to the main facade. The interior Quaker plan of Woodside, with a single east room and two west rooms on each level, has been somewhat altered, although the trim, including interesting vernacular mantels, remains largely intact. The original staircase ascended against the west wall of the east room, but a Victorian stair now rises in two flights in the southeast corner of that room. Floral brackets ornament the open string, and the square newel is topped by an Ionic capital. In both stories, the soffit and reveals of the windows and the doors opening to the exterior are flush-paneled, while those of the interior door openings are flat-paneled. The interior face of each outside door is diagonally sheathed, and features nail studwork and original hardware. Each room on the first level is finished with a flat-paneled wainscot, plaster walls, a molded cornice and a sheathed ceiling and contains a delicate Federal mantel. The most elaborate mantel, that in the parlor, is quite vernacular. The reeded pilasters rise in two stages separated by a block with a demi-sunburst. The frieze features a paneled center tablet accented by a circular sunburst and is flanked by flat panels with oval sunbursts. The heavy molding, including a band of vertical beading under the cornice shelf, breaks out to form caps over the pilaster and center tablet, but the shelf itself continues uninterrupted. The smaller scale, three-part mantels in the two west rooms are almost identical, with flanking two-stage reeded pilasters and a small frieze with a raised center block and a molded shelf. In each room on this level is a whimsical twentieth century ceiling medallion, carved of wood to simulate plaster. The parlor medallion consists of grape clusters, the music room medallion of an assortment of musical instruments, and the dining room of an arrangement of fruits and vegetables--all rendered in astonishingly lifelike detail. At the second level a central hall, finished with wide vertical sheathing, separates the east bedchamber from the two west bedchambers.

Each chamber contains a vertically sheathed wainscot beneath plaster walls and a mantel similar to those on the first level. The east mantel is large in scale like the parlor mantel and has wide reeded pilasters quite vernacular in design, which support a tall frieze with sunbursts flanking the vertically reeded center block and a plain molded shelf. The attic was finished at a later date and is partitioned into two rooms each heated by a flue opening in the chimney stack.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE		Woodside was built probably by Lawson Henderson on a large tract west of Lincolnton soon after his marriage to Elizabeth Caruth on July 20, 1798. The Henderson family was one of the most prominent pioneer families of western North Carolina, and Lawson was no exception. He was sheriff of Lincoln County from 1796 to 1801 and clerk of the county court from 1804 to 1837. By 1805 he owned five slaves and a plantation of over two thousand acres. It is thought that his son, James Pinckney Henderson, was born on this plantation called Woodside on March 31, 1808. James Pinckney carried the Henderson family name to Texas where he became one of that state's most important political figures. In 1836 after practicing law in both North Carolina and Mississippi, Henderson organized a company of troops and traveled to Texas to aid the fight for independence there. After the establishment of Texas as a republic, James Pinckney stayed on in his new country to serve as attorney general, secretary of state, minister to France and England, and finally as the representative to the United States during annexation negotiations in 1844 and 1845. In 1846 he was elected the first governor of the state of Texas, and while governor he served as major general in the Mexican War. When his term as governor expired he declined reelection and resumed his law practice until 1857 when he was appointed a United States senator from Texas. He served until June 4, 1858, when he died in Washington. Woodside plantation remained the home of his father until the latter's death in 1842 when he willed "the brick plantation where I formerly dwelt (about a mile west from Lincolnton)" to his wife, Elizabeth, and their son, Wallace A. J. Henderson. A short time afterward Henderson's widow and son moved to Madison County, Mississippi, and sold the plantation to Dr. Alexander Ramsour on August 16, 1848. The house has remained in the Ramsour family for over a century and is now the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ramsour. Woodside is a good example of the two-story brick Federal houses built in the area in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth century. Particularly interesting are the unusual vernacular Federal design of the interiors and the unique twentieth century wooden medallions. The house is historically significant as the birthplace of James Pinckney Henderson, the first governor of the state of Texas.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Woodside, a large Federal plantation house located on the outskirts of Lincolnton in a well-planted tract, is a two-story brick structure with a gable roof. It is four bays wide and three bays deep, and is set on a random granite foundation. The brick walls are laid in Flemish bond as are the single-shouldered exterior end chimneys--one on the east side and two on the west. Two identical entrances occupy the central bays of the main (north) facade, each with a flush-paneled door surmounted by a four-light transom and enframed by a molded architrave. With one exception, the remaining bays of this facade are marked by windows with wide molded architraves, stone sills and flat arches. All are flanked by louvered shutters. Most windows retain original nine-over-nine sash of the first story and the nine-over-six sash of the second except for a large multi-pane replacement window that occupies the first-story east bay. The overhanging eaves are boxed on both the front and rear. The side windows correspond to the original windows of the main facade, and two six-pane sash windows are present in each gable. The windows which flank the east chimney have been replaced by arched doors. Each chimney has single shoulders and a molded cap. The rear elevation is similar to the main facade.

The interior Quaker plan of Woodside, with a single east room and two west rooms on each level, has been somewhat altered, although the trim, including interesting vernacular mantels, remains largely intact. The original stair ascended against the west wall of the east room, but a Victorian stair now rises in two flights in the southeast corner of that room. Floral brackets ornament the open string, and the square newel is topped by an Ionic capital. In both stories, the soffit and reveals of the windows and the doors opening to the exterior are flush-paneled, while those of the interior door openings are flat-paneled. The interior face of each outside door is diagonally sheathed, and features nail studwork and original hardware. Each room on the first level is finished with a flat-paneled wainscot, plaster walls, a molded cornice and a sheathed ceiling and contains a delicate Federal mantel. The most elaborate mantel, that in the parlor, is quite vernacular. The reeded pilasters rise in two stages separated by a block with a demi-sunburst. The frieze features a paneled center tablet accented by a circular sunburst and is flanked by flat panels with oval sunbursts. The heavy molding, including a band of vertical reeding under the cornice shelf, breaks out to form caps over the pilasters and center tablet, but the shelf itself continues uninterrupted. The smaller scale, three-part mantels in the two west rooms are almost identical, with flanking two-stage reeded pilasters and a small frieze with a raised center block and a molded shelf. In each room on this level is a whimsical twentieth century ceiling medallion, carved of wood to simulate plaster. The parlor medallion consists of grape clusters, the music room medallion of an assortment of musical instruments, and the dining room of an arrangement of fruits and vegetables--all rendered in astonishingly lifelike detail.

At the second level a central hall, finished with wide vertical sheathing, separates the east bedchamber from the two west bedchambers.

Each chamber contains a vertically sheathed wainscot beneath plaster walls and a mantel similar to those on the first level. The east mantel is large in scale like the parlor mantel and has wide reeded pilasters quite vernacular in design, which support a tall frieze with sunbursts flanking the vertically reeded center block and a plain molded shelf. The attic was finished at a later date and is partitioned into two rooms each heated by a flue opening in the chimney stack.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Woodside was built probably by Lawson Henderson on a large tract west of Lincolnton soon after his marriage to Elizabeth Caruth on July 20, 1798. The Henderson family was one of the most prominent pioneer families of western North Carolina, and Lawson was no exception. He was sheriff of Lincoln County from 1796 to 1801 and clerk of the county court from 1804 to 1837. By 1805 he owned five slaves and a plantation of over two thousand acres. It is thought that his son, James Pinckney Henderson, was born on this plantation called Woodside on March 31, 1808. James Pinckney carried the Henderson family name to Texas where he became one of that state's most important political figures. In 1836 after practicing law in both North Carolina and Mississippi, Henderson organized a company of troops and traveled to Texas to aid the fight for independence there.

After the establishment of Texas as a republic, James Pinckney Henderson stayed on in his new country to serve as attorney general, secretary of state, minister to France and England, and finally as the representative to the United States during annexation negotiations in 1844 and 1845. In 1846 he was elected the first governor of the state of Texas, and while governor he served as major general in the Mexican War. When his term as governor expired he declined reelection and resumed his law practice until 1857 when he was appointed a United States senator from Texas. He served until June 4, 1858, when he died in Washington.

Woodside plantation remained the home of his father until the latter's death in 1842 when he willed "the brick plantation where I formerly dwelt (about a mile west from Lincolnton)" to his wife, Elizabeth, and their son, Wallace A. J. Henderson. A short time afterward Henderson's widow and son moved to Madison County, Mississippi, and sold the plantation to Dr. Alexander Ramseur on August 16, 1848. The house has remained in the Ramseur family for over a century and is now the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ramseur.

Woodside is a good example of the two-story brick Federal houses built in the area in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth century. Particularly interesting are the unusual vernacular Federal design of the interiors and the unique twentieth century wooden medallions. The house is historically significant as the birthplace of James Pinckney Henderson, the first governor of the state of Texas.

Jack and Sue Ramseur
Woodside
Rt. 1, Box 231
Lincolnton, NC 28092

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Ramseur:

On behalf of the Historic Properties Commission I would like to inform you that on August 26, 1991 the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners unanimously passed an ordinance which designates Woodsides and 2 acres as a local historic property. If you are interested in the local property tax deferral which is available to you I recommend that you speak with Mr. Jay Heavner, Lincoln County Tax Supervisor no later than December 1, 1991. Once a property is eligible for the tax deferral the owner may apply annually for the deferral.

Again, the Historic Properties Commission commends you for preserving your property. It is the Commissions hope that this will inspire others to preserve the historically and culturally significant properties which are vanishing.

If I may answer any questions please do not hesitate to ask.

Very truly yours,

Stephen Killian
